Chicago Tribune.

SATURDAY, MARCH 2, 1861.

CONGRESS YESTERDAY.

Corwin's bill, from the Committee of Thirty-Three, to admit New Mexico into the Union as a State, was tabled yesterday by the decisive vote of 114 to 17.

In the Senate the propositions of the Peace Conference came up as the special order, but the Associated Press agent seems to have thought the action taken upon them not of sufficient importance to the country to justify giving it publicity.

NOT SUFFICIENT.

Compromisers will please make a note of the speeches of John Tyler and Henry Seldon, both members of the late so-called Peace Conference held at Washington, delivered in Richmond on Thursday night last. It will be seen that both gentlemen indignantly denounce the propositions adopted by that body as a basis of adjustment. Mr. Tyler declared the result to be wholly worthless; and Mr. Seldon said it was a defection, a shame, an offence and an insult to the South." The propositions that have thus insulted the South embrace the following concessions, all of which it is proposed to incorporate into the fundamental law:

1. The establishment of Slavery in all territory South of 36 deg. 30 min., and placing it beyond the reach of either Congress or Territorial Legislatures.

2. Non-acquisition of territory hereafter, either by conquest or purchase, without the consent of a majority of all the Senators from the slaveholding States.

3. Denying to Congress the right to interfere with slavery in the States, in the Territories, in the District of Columbia without the consent of Maryland, or in any place under exclusive jurisdiction of the United States within slaveholding States; also denying to Congress the right to prevent bringing slaves into the District of Columbia, holding them there and taking them away again, or to interfere in any way with the inter-State slave trade; also establishing the right in the transportation of slaves from one State to another, by sea or river, to touch at ports, shores and landings in the free States in case of distress.

4. A construction of the Constitution adverse to the principle of law settled by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Prigg vs. the State of Pennsylvania, by which the sole right of capture and return of fugitive slaves was declared to vest in the Federal Government. The proposed change of construction confers that right as well upon State governments and State judicial and ministerial officers.

5. No change in any of the provisions of the Federal Constitution which in any way affect the rights of slaveholders, to be made hereafter without the consent of all the slave States.

6. Compensation to be made to the owners of all fugitive slaves whose arrest is prevented by violence or intimidation, as well as for all that may be rescued after arrest.

All these concessions to slavery, in the estimation of Mr. Tyler, are worthless, and are only an insult to the South, if Mr. Seldon is to be regarded as authorized to speak for that section! What do our compromisers think of that? How do they relish being insulted in this style, after having, in the face of threats, conceded everything? We have told these gentlemen, a hundred times over, that the quarrel of the South is with the moral sentiment of the North and with the census tables. Blot out the former, change the latter so as to secure the preponderance in the Federal Government for all time to come of the slave-holding aristocracy, force Lincoln and Hamlin to resign in favor of Jeff. Davis and Stevens, and the South will be content to remain in the Union. We believe the Union can be preserved without sacrificing a solitary principle of the Republican platform; but it cannot be preserved by any compromise that stops short of the above. Anything less than that is, in the estimation of that section, "worthless"—"an insult and an offence."

CAPTAIN POPE.

The telegraph advises us that Capt. Pope of the U. S. Army is shortly to be court-martialed for speaking disrespectfully of President Buchanan. The offensive language is said to be contained in a lecture on Fortifications recently delivered in Cincinnati. We have carefully looked over a copy of the aforesaid lecture—a lecture pre-eminently able and patriotic—and the only passages which we find in it containing personal reference to J. B. are the following:

> No resolute attempt has yet been made to protect the public property, or to enforce the revenue laws. In the case we have put forward, the President refuses to reinforce Fort Sumter. I say reluctant, because I believe that her fear of public feeling, rather than her own judgment, has led her to it.
> It is not too much to say that in a Major in the army we owe all that is left of the authority and dignity of the Government. His person and estate, his family, and the first soldiers of patriotic blood, are the pledge of his fidelity. The neglect of duty on the part of the Executive Department of the Government, fastened the Revolution upon the country. Instead of the immediate concentration of his Associates and advisers, and broke up the conspiracy, he went to the Capitol, and left Washington to sit over the safety of the Federal Capital, and our escape from a national degradation, and the wide spread ruin of good government were first felled to wipe out.

For speaking these words, the truthfulness of which cannot be called in question, a brave and gallant officer is to be subjected to the annoyance of a trial before a Court Martial. We say annoyance—for no ignominy can attach to Captain Pope on account of the proposed prosecution. Its only possible result will be to give him additional prominence before the country as an officer and a patriot. President Buchanan will not vindicate his conduct by the procedure. What Captain Pope has written is a part of the history of the country, and unless J. B. proposes to Court-Martial the Muse of History also, he had better see that the order to proceed against Captain Pope is speedily withdrawn.

The Vote in the Peace Conference by Special Dispatch to to Cincinnati Commercial.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.

The vote of the Peace Conference upon the question of the adoption of Franklin's proposition was: All—ayes—Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky and Wisconsin—nine. Nays—Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Iowa, Virginia, and North Carolina—eight. Ohio voted yes, Messrs. Chase and Pugh, and Hitchcock, Democrat and Wright.

THE STONE FLEET.—The Public Ledger says the matter is now settled. A portion of the Executive Board of the State Society were down there days ago, and Rest upon the location. "Brighton" has been chosen. Other locations were proffered, but it seems to have been the judgment of the Executive, that Brighton was the best. A large number of men will be employed in New Haven, and other places, in fitting out the vessels, and it is expected that they will be ready for sea in a short time. The Stone Fleet will consist of fifty vessels, and cluster like a swarm of bees around the mouth of the harbor of Charleston.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our own Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27, 1861.

The "10 fossils" conclave burst and flew to pieces, yesterday—almost! The day before they sat until 3 o'clock at night debating and voting on amendments. Finally they got through, and agreed upon all the propositions separately. Yesterday the whole report was brought up for adoption. It is Guthrie's and Simon Cameron's the amended version proposed by Franklin, with a few other slight modifications. It establishes slavery south of 36 deg. except in the Indian Territory. It nationalizes slavery by providing for its incorporation in the Constitution, and it gives five or six additional guarantees to slavery not now in the Constitution—the same set as forth in the Guthrie proposition.

The final vote was taken at 4 P. M., and signalized by eleven to eight, one State (Indiana) not voting, and Kansas tied. The 36-fer voted as follows:

Affirmative.	Negative.
Maryland,	Ohio,
Delaware,	North Carolina,
Kentucky,	Illinois,
Tennessee,	Missouri,
Virginia,	New Hampshire,
Pennsylvania,	Connecticut,
South Carolina,	Vermont,
Georgia,	New York,
Alabama,	Michigan,
Louisiana,	Iowa,
Texas,	Wisconsin,
Mississippi,
New Jersey,
Ohio,

Kansas, tied.
Indiana, not voting.

The five delegates for Illinois voted: For slave code, 1—Judge Logan. Against slave code, 4—Cook, Woelfe, Palmer and Turner. Ewing, Jr., and bogus Stone, from Kansas, voted for the slave code contrivance. Ex-Mayor Adams and Representative Conway voted against it.

The delegations from Virginia, North Carolina and Missouri voted against the report because they desire no settlement, and are secessionists.

They all got at the cause of their course, that Franklin's report would not settle slavery in future acquisitions of territory from Mexico and Central America. But hostility to a Union with the free States was the chief motive at the bottom of their action.

When the vote was announced, there was great commotion among the dry bones. The old fossils who had eaten so much dirt to no purpose, were overwhelmed with grief. Some of them wept.

A motion to reconsider was moved and carried, and the matter is up again to-day. A strong effort will be made to substitute the call for a National Convention.

The Senate passed the House (Colfax) bill establishing a day overland mail to California, with some amendments. The Butterfield horse-shoe route through Arkansas, Fort Smith, Texas, and New Mexico is abolished, as it ought to be. That route was a swindle on the country, perpetrated by the disunionists. The bill appropriates $600,000 for carrying the mail by four-horse coaches. The route commences at Atchison, Kansas, and follows the great road of the Platte—crossing the Rocky Mountains at the South Pass; thence to Salt Lake city to Sar Francisco. The route will be that run by the Pony Express. A telegraph wire will be completed the whole distance alongside of the proposed daily stage route. The measure will be hailed with great satisfaction in California, Oregon and the whole West. It is the pioneer of the great Central Railroad which will be speedily commenced, if the disunionists stay out of Congress a short time.

A branch stage line from Denver City to the mouth of the South Platte will tap the great California Mail, and supply the Pike's Peak mining country with daily mail facilities. The Senate has concurred in the House amendments to the bill organizing the Territory of Colorado, and it now only awaits the signature of Oldham's ghost to become a law. The House also passed bills organizing Nevada and Dacotah Territories, which the House will concur in, all the Territories will then be provided with Governments.

The tariff bill, with the tax on tea and coffee stricken out, has passed both Houses, and now awaits the President's signature. The loss of revenue by striking out the duty on tea and coffee is estimated at $70 millions. Had the bill passed as it came from the Senate, it was expected to yield $10,000,000 more revenue than the present act. It is estimated that it will still yield between ten and eleven millions more than the law now in force.

The following speech of Senator Simmons in defence of the bill, may be interesting, not only in showing the gains to the revenue, but the value of various articles imported into this country per year:

For the last year the importations of woolens amounted to $27,326,035, and the duties to $6,125,000. The estimate in the bill pending will increase the duties to $8,000,000. The importations of silks for the last year amounted to $20,727,000, and the duties to $3,000,000. The estimate under the pending bill is $3,818,000. The importations last year of manufactures of flax and hemp amounted to $6,000,000, and the duties to $1,200,000. The estimated increase of the duty is $672,000. The importations of iron and the manufactures of, amounted to $13,000,000 for the last year, and the duty to $4,500,000. The estimated increase under the bill is $1,350,000. The importations of wines for the last year amounted to $4,875,000, and at the present rate of duty the revenue derived was $1,462,500. We have conducted to put it at 40 per cent., which, of course, gives an increase of $487,500. The importations of coffee for the last year were $13,377,000, and the duties amounted to $2,145,000. The importations of tea for the last year were $9,000,000, and the duties amounted to $1,347,000. The importations of cotton fabrics have amounted to over twenty-seven millions annually, and the duties to over six millions. The estimated increase is $1,500,000. On the vast variety of fabrics of mixed goods, the importations have amounted to over $30,000,000. These leading articles amount to about $300,000,000, for which the duties amount to $75,000,000, being 25 per cent.; a vast variety on which I have estimated the increase at 4 per cent., making $3,000,000.

The sum of the estimated increase of duties are $13,154,500. Deduct from this the reduction on silks and woolens—$2,181,035—and it would leave an increase of $10,973,465.

The bill authorizing the President to call for volunteers and order out the militia to defend the Capital and put down insurrection, was postponed until Thursday. It will not pass this session. Many Republicans contend that the law of 1795 gives the President ample power to call out the militia, and therefore this bill is not necessary.

MOUNT VERNON.

A Visit to the Grave of a Virginia Reconstructionist—Improvements by the Mount Vernon Association.

[Special Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.]

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Feb. 26, 1861.

A large party of gentlemen and ladies have assailed themselves of a mild spring-like day, and the services of a grimy little steamer, to visit a locality believed by the name of one who in these times deserves to be remembered as a Great Emancipationist, who has left on record a lasting rebuke of American Slavery. And it was to revive the associations, and the memory of his services in the cause of human freedom, that to-day we voyaged in the T. Colyer on the Potomac.

Don't go off at half cock, and think of Harper's Ferry and John Brown. Do not for an instant so mistake us. Besides, the bones of old Osawatomie do not repose in Virginia. We found to-day the end of our journey when we stood beside the marble sarcophagus that holds the mortal remains of GEORGE WASHINGTON. We passed several hours at Mount Vernon.

The steamer left the dock at 10 a. m., headed down to the guards with passengers, and with a motion that seemed to speak to us that she would deem it a capital joke for her to roll over like a poodle, and the Gulf.

Mount Vernon is sixteen miles below Washington. The Potomac, at this point, presents southward from the city, the appearance of standing almost the entire distance to Mount Vernon, such a straight, broad channel, closely bordered with bays and fringed on either side by the picturesque shores of Maryland and the Old Dominion, as to make a few moments' stay at Alexandria, the only break in the view. We landed at a Rickety dock, at the foot of a high, steep bank, up which we filed in Indian file, by a narrow path, to the summit, where a few paces brought us to the tomb of Washington.

Mount Vernon, as approached, has by no means the appearance of a place of public resort. Instead of a well-kept, trim, and tasteful lawn, the visitor finds himself in a wilderness of weeds, and every sign of neglect and decay. The mansion, which is in the centre of the grounds, is a large, square, wooden building, with a piazza, supported by pillars, extending the whole length of the front. The paint is all worn off, and the whole building looks as if it needed repairs and renovation. The tomb is a plain, wooden box protects the horse chestnut, planted by the Prince of Wales, which, in a hundred years will enjoy every thing that is left of the Washington family, the ashes of the old lady of Mount Vernon, and the old patriot-hunter, who actually stole a skull and several larger bones for museum purposes, forgetting his calling, and not leaving sufficient for those of decent Christians.

The Mount Vernon Association have given the old tomb a new lease of life and a new appearance. Just beyond the tomb and under the hill is a neat, modern structure built last year, covering a living spring, and occupying the site of the ancient hunter edifice of the same nature.

Every tourist has written it in his book that the site of Mount Vernon is well chosen—a beautiful spot. The top of the hill, some two hundred feet above the level of the Potomac, overlooking a wide expanse of country. For several of us other attraction than its magnificent outlook it is worth going miles to see.

Under the auspices of the board of managers of the Mount Vernon Association, the premises are undergoing a remarkable change. Only a few years ago the old mansion, which has been given into their possession. The rooms on the lower floor to the left of the front door are all that are at present open to visitors, and these are in a state of decay. Mayor Adams and Representative Conway voted against it.

The delegations from Virginia, North Carolina and Missouri voted against the report because they desire no settlement, and are secessionists.

They all got at the cause of their course, that Franklin's report would not settle slavery in future acquisitions of territory from Mexico and Central America. But hostility to a Union with the free States was the chief motive at the bottom of their action.

SATURDAY, MARCH 4, 1861.

MORNING.

Tuesday Evening, March 1, 1861.

The dense weather of the past few days has not only retarded business more than anything we have known for years, but has also done much damage. Although the bulk of the wheat that was harvested last fall, the most has still an impervious covering, which is now rotting and will be removed by the present weather, and what will be saved for spring sowing, which is now in many localities in a very unhealthy state. These must be at least a large shrinkage in the amount of spring wheat to be sown, and hence a trade in advance for a large trade, for with ample means at command the people will invariably do their business for the other in the business of life.

With an entire abandonment of our railroad business will rapidly recede to living rates. For the last few months considerable amounts of currency have been received, and the trade have been sold to make exchange. As an inducement we take pleasure in stating that we have received from Chicago within the past week a large amount of currency, which we are disposed to part with at a small premium. Our Illinois State bank can be taken hereafter for new banks, or old ones that desire to increase their circulation.

The sentiment in regard to certain Illinois banks which has agitated the city for the last few days has subsided, and financial matters are moving along smoothly. A very pretty scheme, it is reported, had been formed by a certain wealthy currency speculator to make a very handsome thing by buying up city issues to throw over large amounts of Illinois paper. Who the gentleman was—even if presumed to—from Springfield to visit the case. A good supply of Exchange, it is said, had been previously procured, and had they been thrown out the price might have been forced up to Arkansas figures—some hint of Nelson or Shoot or Abolition Agent—and the currency come pouring in. Some of these heretofore solvents have "stacked out," and certain gentlemen's easy feel their profits early minus when the footings for sales of exchange come to be made. They may cry, but nobody else will shed any tears over the result.

Exchange has been nominally 9 @10 during the day, but it was weak. Some parties sold to last evening at 7, and a consequent of it was in much request readily obtained on round lots. Buying rated at a wide range—about 60@75 were the figures. The demand is light, and everybody is satisfied to keep within moderate limits. The policy of withholding supplies is adopted universally, and we shall expect a speedy breaking up with our vicinage and forwarding currency.

St. Louis.—We quote as follows from the Democrat of yesterday:

There was no change to note to-day in the rate of exchange, which remains at the same figures as last week, and will probably continue for some time. The amount of currency in hand is quite large, and the demand is light, as it is generally supposed that the rates will be higher in a few days. It has been reported that the banks intended to advance the rate to-day, but we have been assured that no such step was contemplated for the present. The banks will probably adopt the old custom and let the others do the advancing.

Gold continued buying yesterday at 2@3 premium. Little wanted.

Bank Organizations.—It was announced at the time that Gov. Yates had appointed Hon. Wm. H. Harrison of Springfield, Hon. Thomas Quirk of Ottawila, and Hon. Allen C. Paine of Belvidere, Bank Commissioners. Messrs. Herndon and Quirk have filed the office duly and with entire satisfaction to the public for several years past. Judge Paine, Republican once in his district and always a gentleman of unbiased judgment and eminent abilities fitted him especially for the important position he has been called on to fill. Under the management of these gentlemen, we trust as the new law comes fully in force, we shall organize no more banks with our present unsound and fluctuating
